Path to Publish - the monthly AJP newsletter

Utilizing the assistance of peer reviewers plays a large role in the scope of academic publishing. This year alone The American Journal of Pathology has utilized almost 800 different individuals representing 27 different countries as peer reviewers for our manuscripts. If you are not currently a reviewer for AJP, contact the editorial office (ajp@asip.org) and a reviewer account will be created for you. We look forward to requesting your assistance on future submissions

Did you know...

The press release program for The American Journal of Pathology has been in practice for over 10 years!

The Editorial Office began highlighting articles with an in-house prepared press release in April of 2005. Press releases have always been under the purview of the Scientific Editor and are coordinated with the publication and production team for coordinated release, generally prior to the print date of the full issue. Recent press releases can be found on the AJP website here:

<http://ajp.amjpathol.org/content/press> and the archive of older press releases is also available here: <http://ajp.amjpathol.org/content/press-archive>.
