Celebrating 100 Years of Discovery

The ASIP Centennial Celebration will be held at the ASIP 2013 Annual Meeting at Experimental Biology in Boston, MA, from April 20-24, 2013. If you have not yet submitted your abstract, the Late-Breaking Abstract deadline is February 21, 2013, and the early registration deadline is February 22, 2013. You will not want to miss our vibrant scientific program encompassing diverse topics relevant to basic biology and the pathobiology of human diseases. Centennial observances will include a special reception and dinner to be held at The Institute of Contemporary Art in Boston's Waterfront district (See order form on page 11) and a publication of a historical archive of major scientific accomplishments of the membership. Program details start on page 8.

The American Journal of Pathology (AJP) Centennial Project will highlight the major contributions of AJP in the last 100 years. Read the introductory article written by AJP Editor-in-Chief, Kevin A. Roth, MD, PhD, The American Journal of Pathology Centennial Project: Celebrating 100 Years of the American Society for Investigative Pathology, Volume 180, Issue 4, Pages 1337-1339, April 2012, doi:10.1016/j.ajpath.2012.02.002.

Welcoming 2013: A Year of Renewal for AJP

With the coming of each new year, we all ponder making resolutions. What should I change? How can I see it through? The same goes for publishing. And 2013 marks a year of transformation for The American Journal of Pathology. Some changes are very visible, such as the new journal design, while others are more philosophical, ie the naming of a new Editor-in-Chief. Together these changes reflect the vibrant plans we have for AJP in the coming year.

Making Changes on the Outside.

Since our relationship with Elsevier began in 2010, we have looked forward to updating the look and feel of the Journal, a renovation so to speak. Such changes take time and planning, so with input from former Editor-in-Chief Dr. Michael Lisanti, we worked with Elsevier's design team to create a fresh look. The 2013 cover now sports a deep burgundy color that echoes the appearance of the online journal (<http://ajp.amjpathol.org>). Inside each issue, readers will find that articles contain an updated look with new fonts, formats, and design. The text now bears a serif typeface—little tails at a letter's edge, which makes reading easier on the eyes, while
